

8/22/80

Julian,

1. Your picture in Coin World didn't do you justice.

2. The check is for the usual 5% commission on the $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ at \$1900 and the 1831 pf. large cent at \$8,000 that you evaluated and helped me buy in Auction '80.

3. Enclosed, as we discussed, is the duplicate 1795 G1 lettered edge $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ that I would be willing to sell if it can realize an attractive price. You have, in recent months, seen four choice specimens of this coin, which is interesting in itself. They are:

A) The Garrett coin at 30

B) The one I sent you a few months ago in the group to be evaluated

C) The red one I showed you in your room in Cincinnati

D) This one.

I have compared B, C, and D side by side today. Also reviewed my notes of the side-by-side comparison of A + B last November in N.Y. My feelings are:

Color: C is red and has clearly best color, B has purple toning with traces of red which I liked next best, A was an even smooth brown, I think, and this one D last, although still nice.

Detail: (Strike or rub) A, B, + D identical - sharp, clear no feeling of wear. C, in spite of red color, has a trace less detail in some places.

Surfaces: This one, D, cleanest in my opinion, followed (scratches, etc.) very closely by B, A, and C in that order.

Over-all, my preference is in the following order: B, A, D, C. Someone who likes mint red might move C up one or more spots. The dollar value might likewise be higher for C because of the color.

You have already told me that you thought the Garrett coin was more attractive than B. Now where does this one rank, in your most candid judgement? And, on a more vulgar level, what might it realize if sold, and how should it be sold?

Bernard

Dear Tett:

I showed the 1795 C-5B to Walter Breen at the ANA. He feels that the undertype large cent is an S-76 (a or b?).

Sept. 17, 1980

Dear Jim,

Thanks very much for your letter, the lists, and the copy of your book. The book is very impressive and remarkably comprehensive. I'm looking forward to reading it in pieces over the months ahead.

Let me try to organize my response to the coin questions as follows.

2 I Your duplicate list. The only coin on this list that I would like is the 1795 C6B VG10. Whatever else we do or do not do, I would like to buy this or trade for it.

II. Your collection list. There are a number of coins on this list I would or might like to buy or trade for, if available. Would like: '94 C3A, '95 C5B*, '95 C6B*, 03 C2 TAT, 04 C5AU, 09 C3 off-c, 32 C1. Might like: 93 C1 break, 94 C4A early, 94 C8 break, 95 C5B clip, 03 C1 early, 04 C4 both, 04 C7 crack, 04 C9 add. cracks, 04 C13 over brock, 06 C3 both, 07 C1 late, 08 C2 break, 08 C3 early, 09 C4 both.

Notes on this section. I don't have good records on my die states. Most of the coins in the "might like" portion depend on my checking the die state of my specimen, and I would be interested in yours if it is a different state.

*asterisks: 95 C5B. I am ambivalent about this coin in the price range we have been talking about. At the moment, I'm glad you didn't take my offer at the ANA. It seems a lot of money for a coin that I regard as "unconventional." If you get another customer for it at a price you would accept, please don't hesitate to sell it on my account. I won't feel mistreated.

95 CGB. Of course, if you are willing to part with this one, then it would be instead of the one on your duplicate list, which I listed in Section I, not in addition to that one.

III My duplicates When I started counting them up, I was a little bit startled. I won't try to list them, just give a general description. The list would include: every variety from 1800 on except the untitled-in-Gilbert varieties of 04, 06, 08 + 09, and 31, 02C1, 04C5, 05C2. It would also include 2 vars 93, 5 vars 94, all 95's except C6B, 1 96, all 97's except C3A, about 18 proof-only pfs, and 4 regular pfs. Generally, there are two or more specimens of most of the above. The rare varieties are generally (but not always) in or near condition census.

In the dropped busts, I have 17 that I list as better than AU55. Some are called 55+, 58, 60-60, 60+, 62, 65. In the "Classic Head" dates about the same number, with more of them in the upper three categories. In "Braided Hair" there are about 8. Mostly, these high-grade duplicates are in the common varieties, of course. But they are spread out over a large number of varieties, not concentrated in just a few.

About grading. These have been acquired over quite a few yrs. I have learned more about grading as I went along, so the grading isn't uniform. It would be a big chore to regrade all of these, but if we get involved I will, of course. On the whole, though, I think the grading of most of them will be the same or very close to the standard you use.

Die states. I have very incomplete information, as I said, except for the major breaks, etc. Some of the above duplicates may turn out to be different die states that I want to keep. However, I have not listed any that I know to be different.

IV How to proceed Beats me! I don't want to sell, only to trade. And what ^{would} we use as a basis for pricing? A suggestion - Why don't you decide which of the coins in your collection that I have listed in Section II you would be willing to trade for some of my duplicates, and what kind of duplicates you would prefer. I think you indicated a preference for mint state type coins, but maybe you would rather upgrade your collection in places. PLEASE keep all of this confidential.

If there is some other way you would prefer to proceed, it is probably OK, so long as it doesn't require a lot of time. In any case, let's start with the 95C6B. What would be a fair price or exchange for it?

Sorry to be so long-winded,

Regards,
Telt

PS Somewhere I heard that you had an 1811 C1 with a different state of the crack or break. Do you have or have you seen?

Julian,

I am sending you today a package of duplicate half-cents, plus the three gold proofs and the extra Lafayette dollar.

Most of these you saw, but I have added a few lower grade dups also, in the hope that we could use this opportunity to get rid of them in a package.

The half-cents amount to about $100,000 worth, by a very rough estimate. With the gold it should be something over.

Some of these you commented on as needing brushing to improve them. Please feel free to do so on any that you feel would be helped.

It would assist my book-keeping if you could set individual prices on each coin disposed of, even if they are sold as a lot and you have to make estimates.

As I summarize it, we need to dispose of at least $42,000 worth to finish up on the 1795 $1. Preferably $60,000 plus, arrived at as follows:

1795 $1	owing	$42,000
Balance of $17,000 loan/grade		13,225
Your commission on all this		?
Total:		more than $60,000

If it should be possible to dispose of all these; or nearly so, there is no reason to stop at $60,000. The balance can be a credit to use in trade on future purchases.

Some word on priorities: I would prefer to get rid of the type coin 1/2¢ from EF to clue. If the other party doesn't care, save out some of the proofs, and the proof gold. I don't want to let him take ONLY the proofs, unless you feel that a premium price is being paid.

In particular 36.3.1, the reverse of 1840, is one of only 5 known. A real rarity. Do not use it in the $$1$ payoff. This is intended only as part of a separate trade for the equally rare 1831. If you have to give this '36 and one of the other proofs for the '31, it is O.K.

I have original envelopes on the Showers and all the auction coins and a few others, if the purchaser wants them.
Thanks for the check and Grey sheet

Best to Fern + Robyn

Dear Bernard,

Enclosed please find a statement of your acct. with me as of this date along with the itemized sales and trade data. Also, please find the remaining coins returned as per your request.

As you can see, you have money due you. Please advise as to your wishes. No rush however as I can always use the float.

Regarding the 1836 C 31, Anthony Terranova made me a 1500 offer for the coin and after I called your office, he told me that he didn't want it after all.

I hope that the accounting is understandable and that you are pleased with the results. I'm happy with the arrangement and look forward to doing something similar in the future.

Thank you for the opportunity
Best wishes,
Julian
